Human and Social Services Industry Tour

Are you interested in helping people as a career? Are you wondering what work life is actually like? Are you majoring in social work, human development and family studies, psychology, liberal arts, or any similar major? The Career Center will be traveling to Denver on Friday, December 6th to have an opportunity to learn about and interact with three service-centered organizations:

- Foothills Gateway (in Fort Collins)
  - Works with people with cognitive disabilities and their families to empower them to achieve their goals and live the lives they want to live

- Denver Rescue Mission-Lawrence Street Shelter
  - Homeless shelter that provides emergency care to the poor and homeless through overnight shelters, meals, food, clothing, health clinic, and rehabilitation programs.
  - There will be an opportunity to serve at the shelter!

- City Year of Denver
  - Serve as tutors, mentors, and role models to school-aged children in the Denver area through academic support, after-school programs, and community renovation.

Why should you go?

- You'll have the opportunity to network with employers
  - There will be time to talk with employers and share your resumes. You never know what doors might open!

- Discover different career paths within human and social services
  - Maybe there is a path you've never thought of to pursue

- Serve with organizations
  - Not just a tour, but a chance to be a part of the organization for a while!

- Learn ways you can make a difference.
  - You won't only learn, but you'll get to experience what it's like to make a difference.
